What is the most important tool in your golf bag?

Some may argue that it's the putter, because you use it on every hole. Others may say that it's the driver, because it's tough to complete the hole from OB.

The most important tool, however, has to be the golf ball. Have you ever tried playing a round without a ball? So what you ask is the best ball on the market? Well, Titleist have come up with a nifty little golf ball selector, depending on your game. Please click here, and let me know.

If you are a Titleist player and would like to purchase any Titleist balls, we will be selling them at cost price, for this week only. You heard right – at cost!

Please send me an email via ian@zwartkopcc.co.za, with the following information, and we will happily keep your golf balls aside, so that you can collect them after lockdown.

- Name and Surname
- Ball type and quantity
- Proof of payment

Payment details:

1. Zwartkop Golf Shop
2. FNB 62257740871
3. Centurion
4. Reference: First Name and Surname

Blowing away another myth. It's quicker than you think.

Thinking about your golf game, where would an improvement make the most difference? Not just to your scorecard or your handicap, but to how much you enjoy the game. If you are struggling with enjoyment, then there's a good chance it's one of these skills:

Too many shots in the rough, lost in the woods, or far too short. Hole spoiled before you start.

Can't get the ball up on good trajectory. Too inconsistent. It's a struggle tee to green.

Too many golfers sit in one or both of these categories. They're under 100 sometimes but often struggle with that target. If that's you I'm betting you love your friends, and the outdoors, but the game itself is frustrating. So let's blow a myth away.

~~10,000
Hour Rule~~

It might take 10,000 hours to be an elite level golfer, but what if it took less than 20 hours of practice to MASTER one skill?

I'm interested, tell me more

The key to mastering a skill is not bashing away endlessly with minimal or no improvement. The right improvement identified and explained. Simple steps. The right deliberate practice drills. The right feedback. Pick a skill. Start a conversation with us. Now's a good time.

More often.

It feels good when you grip it and rip it and the ball booms away. Want to feel that more often?

“The game has changed materially. Literally. Materials, thickness of walls and weight dispersion have all radically evolved. Along with the manufacturing process, they allow drivers to be hugely tolerant of where you strike the face with the ball.”

Experience greater more often

The last few years have seen big jumps in more than ball speed protection. Once we've matched your swing DNA to the right launch DNA, there is a face working to protect everything, so you're greater off the tee every time. If that matters to you, then when we next see you, let's talk about this or
