It's more than loft

You might have read an article that suggests you should be playing with “more loft” if you have a regular or more modest swing speed. Please beware of that generalisation.

These drivers all have the exact same loft, but they won't create the same launch angle (or the same spin rate) because their CoG is located in different places.

“The position of the CoG inside the driver's head will significantly impact the launch angle and the spin rate. That's why the first question is, what do you need most? It's an important question because for some golfers taking 500rpm off of spin adds 15 metres of distance. For others adding 2° of launch angle, adds 15 metres of distance.”

Get your DNA measured

There's a driver DNA – ball speed, launch angle, and spin rate. We need to match those when fitting you for a driver. How close is your match? Do you have 20 metres or more of extra performance in the right DNA? Come and see us. Let's unlock your potential to thrill.

Friends should fall in love with golf

You know just how social golf is. You know how many friends you make. You know how good it is for your health and well-being. If you're working from home, you know how important it is to break the digital connection from time to time and get outside.

If you have friends who aren't getting "away from the grind", then help them out. Introduce them to golf through one of our introductory programmes, and help them #lovegolf.

A perfect gift for someone

We're starting a fun, social programmes to ease people into the game, out onto the golf course, and into a place full of new social connections and enjoyment. Why not gift a place on that programme, to a friend? Want to learn more?
