

Put your hands together for this week's hero

Congratulations to Golf Management Campus first year student, John-George Pringle, who won the Club Champs at his home Clubs, Volksrust. While John-George is a member at Zwartkop through the GMC, he is officially handicapped at Volksrust. He shot 74-71 to win the A-Division. This is fantastic, we are proud of you.

With this level of skill, it's raining holes-in-one

Rob Cliff had a hole-in-one on the new 6th hole on Friday, 12th March during an official competition. He won 12 cases of Fox Cider. Well done Rob, this is awesome.

A promotional graphic for a 'March Madness' event. The background is a blurred image of a golf course with a golf bag full of clubs in the foreground. The text is overlaid on a semi-transparent yellow box. At the top, it says 'MARCH MADNESS' and 'TURN YOUR CLUBS INTO CASH' in bold, dark letters. Below that, it states 'We will trade in your old Golf Clubs for a ZCC Golf Shop Credit'. A bulleted list follows: '• We will give you 70% of what we can sell them for' and '• Use your credit to buy new clubs, shoes, bags or clothes'. At the bottom left, it says 'Call (012)654-1144 for details' and includes the Zwartkop Country Club logo, which features a bird and the text 'ZWARTKOP COUNTRY CLUB'.

The very best for you

If you're a better player, the numbers are bigger still.

We took one brand's #5 iron model and checked the number of standard variations to the different components.

The first one we looked at was an iron designed for the developing golfer. There were two shaft options, each with just three flexes.

648 Different configurations of a single iron.

9 Different shaft length options.

2 Shaft types: 1 graphite, 1 steel.

3 Shaft flex options on each shaft type.

12 Difference lie angle options.

The same brand, a better player's iron, and there were six different shaft options, each with different flex options. Some shafts had four flex options, others had just two. But just in shafts there were 15 different shaft options. Now add the lie angles and shaft length options and the number is huge.

1,620 Different configurations of a single iron.

9 Different shaft length options.

15 Shaft and shaft flex options.

12 Difference lie angle options.

Invest in better golf, have more fun

If you're looking to hit better approach shots, possibly one of the first questions you should ask is whether the configuration of your current iron set is making the game easier or more difficult. Why not start with an assessment of your swing and equipment?

Getting a long approach shot onto the green usually means a birdie putt will follow. But to get into that position, you need good launch, accuracy and distance with your irons. The new Srixon ZX4 gives more golfers access to those kinds of shots.

Start with an assessment

No-one expects you to be Jordan or Justin

How does your swing look? We want to look at it with you. We don't want to compare it to Jordan Spieth or Justin Thomas or Tiger Woods. We want to find the small, easy to improve areas which, if improved, make a big impact on your playing experience.

Setup

Too often we make it difficult from the start.

Takeaway

You've all read that apparently the rest is easy if this is right!

Backswing

How many photos have you seen showing the right position at the top?

Transition

Despite telling us what went before made it easy...

Release

Is this where we “throw the clubhead at the ball”?

Follow-through

More than for show. This will reveal everything.

Start with a swing assessment

Six steps to an understanding of why your experience on the course is where it is. We want to help you improve it.
