Solving the time challenge

Raising children is one of the most rewarding parts of life. But it does take lots of time and energy, and often, that means less time for golf. But what if your children loved the game as much as you do?

Double the enjoyment you get from the game by getting your child into golf. You could spend hours of quality time with your loved ones, while also keeping your swing in shape.

Once we've set the learning foundation, we move into the 'play to improve' phase of our junior coaching approach. It's usually between the ages of 13 and 15 years that we start to shift the focus towards shot-making and performance.

You can have it all

By getting your child into golf, you'll be able to spend more time at the course while having a new shared passion.

Start a better journey with us

Frustrating isn't it? After a good tee shot, you've lost your approach right.

Not half as frustrating as hitting it right off the tee. From the rough or trees, it's a struggle to get anywhere near the green.

Most golfers shooting above 90 are struggling with the ball going right (for right-handers). If that's you, hitting the ball straighter, or even with a gentle draw, gets you on a better journey.

Some quick checks we can also do ahead of time if you book an assessment:

Is your grip too weak, causing the face to arrive open to the swing path at contact?

Are you holding the club in your fingers? Many hold it in their palm, making it more difficult to release the hands.

Is your club grip too large, making it more difficult for your hands?

Lose that slice

An assessment is the perfect place to start. And we won't start a conversation talking about your slice. Let's start with your game and what will make it even more enjoyable. And we'll also fix that slice.
