The right equipment helps

Stay in play

With the driver, many golfers, especially those shooting in the 90s, impart too much spin, especially left-to-right spin (for right-handers) on the golf ball. Contact towards the toe adds to the challenge and robs the golfer of even more distance.

ON ITS WAY TO THE FAIRWAY

THIS IS ON ITS WAY TO TROUBLE

Coaching
OR Technology

TO GO THE DISTANCE STRAIGHTER?

The Srixon ZX5 MK II Driver has a lot of technology to create faster ball speeds. It also has latest generation engineering to help with your tee shot accuracy and consistency.

Creating more ability to influence spin

Ridges and latticework provides the structural integrity necessary for a thin titanium crown. This new, ultralight design means more discretionary mass can be placed to influence spin of tee-shots.

Your personal setup

One 8g sole weight placed low and deep in the head elevates launch while the adjustable hosel provides the opportunity to perfect your preferred loft, lie, and face angle.

Fix the slice

Don't settle for missing fairways. You can invest the time into improving, but it's always a good idea to look at how technology can give your game an immediate lift. The right technology for you.

Recover a golfer

Returning as a parent

For many, parenting commitment means less and less time available to play golf, until eventually the clubs get packed away. As the children get to be 5 years and older, they can find their own pastimes, or they can discover that golf is the greatest family pastime there is.

If you have a friend who's grown a family and stopped playing golf, tell them to come back and bring their family along. They'll be better off and you'll have done someone a good turn.

Let's help a friend

If you know anyone you think should get back into golf, bring them down, send them to us, or give us their details and we'll reach out personally to re-introduce them to the game.
